Why would you want to continue going after one of the hallmark companies in the United States. From what I can tell not one consumer was dissatisfied just whining competitors that couldn't be creative enough with their strategies to win against Microsoft and a room full of state politicians that see the potential for another handout from a successful company with deep pockets. The Clinton administration wasted our tax dollars pursuing this case don't do the same. Settle and move on. Our country has bigger problems than slapping the hands of Bill Gates.
